Margo,

Can you take a look at this potential disposition of your charge question suggestions? I was not sure how to make our revisions show up as edits in another color on yours, but if you open this you can see some of your suggested changes in the color you used. Sometimes when we reworded text, it then showed up black, just like our original text, so you may need to compare versions to see where we made alternative changes to capture what we think are your points. I'll also paste the resultant charge questions below into the email - but that does not indicate source of text by color at all.
